

Description: A data science problem that interests me is predicting who will the Super Bowl based off of only 5 games in the current NFL season. To do this I am calculating efficiency stats by the three main areas of football: Offense, Defense, & Special Teams. I am scoring each team by their total efficiency (the combination of Offense, Defense & Special Teams efficiency) then predicting the results of future games based off efficiency rankings, which will create a Super Bowl prediction.

